

Cliff Notes: Chapter 4 Findings for RQ1

The chapter shows that discipline in the NSC was conceptualised through obedience, internalisation, and performativity, then synthesised through co-inherence.

RQ1

Chapter question

The chapter asks how NSC instructors and school leaders understood and discussed discipline in the programme.

MOVE

Analytic sequence

The chapter first presents the three themes, then draws them together as a theoretical synthesis.

UNCERTAINTY

Return to Chapter 2

The chapter returns to the literature problem that discipline is contested,

THEMES

Three findings

The findings are organised into obedience, internalisation, and performativity.

SYNTHESIS

Co-inherence

Co-inherence names the relation in which the three themes appear together and draw meaning from one another.

NEXT STEP

Bridge to Chapter 5

The closing move shifts from how discipline is conceptualised to how it is

Central chapter claim

Discipline was not conceptualised through one dimension alone. Participants moved between obedience, internalisation, and performativity when explaining what discipline meant in the NSC.

One-line argument: Chapter 4 turns RQ1 into a three-part account of discipline as commanded, carried, and displayed.
