

Cliff Notes: 4.3 Performativity

Performativity frames discipline as visible conduct whose meaning remains uncertain until observation weakens.

CLAIM

Discipline appears as display

Participants describe discipline as

VISIBILITY

Training is high-visibility space

Recruits are locked, guarded, watched,

EYE-SERVICE

Eye-service exposes weak discipline

If conduct appears only around authority

TEST

Real discipline survives no audience

HUMMINGBIRD

Hummingbird names controlled appearance

The Hummingbird represents polished,

SIGNS

Signs make discipline legible

Dress, deportment, neatness, mannerisms,

JANKRO

Jankro names reversion or collapse

The Jankro represents what may emerge when surveillance weakens and the training environment recedes.

The strongest test becomes doing the

Performativity claim

The theme turns on the gap between disciplined appearance and durable discipline. Hummingbird names the controlled display. Jankro asks what remains when the display no longer needs to be sustained.

One-line argument: performativity is discipline as appearance under watch, where the key problem is whether visible order proves inner formation.